Description

Shelter Cove is a QUIET airport in California's Lost Coast, and is a great destination for an unplugged getaway. There are lots of outdoor activities, as noted on the website for the town. The golf course at the airport has info here: <https://sheltercove-ca.gov/parks-rec/golf/>.

There's a campsite at the end of the runway, and several oceanside hotels a short walk away from the airport. There's an AirBnB on the other side of the fence at the north end of the runway: <https://www.airbnb.com/rooms/36315021>.

This is a great destination if you want to fly somewhere and slow down for a few days.

Be aware of people, bikes, golf carts, and wildlife on the runway and taxi ways when approaching.

Gyppo is a great brewery with fresh food that's directly attached to the airport. Airport is unfenced so you can walk directly to the restaurant. There's also a small convenience store across from the ramp on the southeast end too.
